The role

While it is expected that Lecturers will be appointed to 0.39FTE positions, there may be some scope or need for variation, at the College's discretion, depending on expertise, timetabling, and availability, providing the business needs of the College are met through the overall pattern of six appointments.

We wish to appoint specialists in English who are able to teach on academic writing, and/or on British culture and literature. Preference may be given to candidates with active interests in the relationship of these aspects of English to one or more of the following areas: software and/or technology; employment contexts; diversity and inclusion. Preference may also be given to candidates who are able to cover all the specialisms we are seeking.

Core duties will include preparation of classes, teaching, marking, and office hours for designated pre-existing courses for incoming students from the Northeastern network, as well as education support work as required by the College. Courses for which teaching is required include Academic Writing, Cultures of London (a multi-disciplinary transhistorical course about London's diverse cultures), and British Drama (a transhistorical course focusing on theatre of London).

We particularly encourage applications from those with an interest in innovative teaching, learning and assessment; those with experience of supporting a wide variety of students; and those belonging to groups underrepresented in UK higher education.
