The role

The New College of Humanities at Northeastern wishes to appoint a part-time Lecturer (Teaching) in Philosophy.

We wish to appoint specialists in Philosophy who are able to teach on human values in relation to technology, and who are wide-ranging and flexible in teaching in other areas if required. Preference may be given to candidates with active interests in the relationship of the technology & human values to one or more of the following areas: software and/or technology; employment contexts; diversity and inclusion.

Core duties will include preparation of classes, teaching, and office hours for the course Technology and Human Values, as well as education support work as required by the College.

We particularly encourage applications from those with an interest in innovative teaching, learning and assessment; those with experience of supporting a wide variety of students; and those belonging to groups underrepresented in UK higher education. We are open to appointing on a reduced fraction/job-share basis subject to our business needs.

About the College

Founded in 2012, with the aim of providing the highest quality of education in the humanities and social sciences, New College of the Humanities at Northeastern has established itself as a prestigious higher education institution based in the heart of London. We offer a unique and broad liberal arts-inspired curriculum with highly personalised teaching, which may include tutorials. The College is undergoing an exciting period of growth, having become part of Northeastern University's global network in early 2019.

Enquiries

Informal enquiries may be made to Dr Brian Ball, Head of Faculty of Philosophy (brian.ball@nchlondon.ac.uk). However, all applications must be made in accordance with the application process specified.
