The role

The New College of Humanities at Northeastern wishes to appoint an Assistant Professor (Teaching & Scholarship) in History.

We wish to appoint a specialist in early modern history. Appointees will be flexible, able, and willing to be wide-ranging in their teaching and in their professional development. Preference may be given to candidates with active interests in the relationship of early modern history to one or more of the following areas: software and/or technology; employment contexts; diversity and inclusion. Preference may also be given to candidates with expertise in the history of England in the early modern period, wider cross-cultural interactions in the early modern world and public history.

Core duties will include teaching across a range of relevant areas such as sixteenth-century England, cross-cultural encounters in the early modern world and public history, as well as wider educational and administrative duties. Appointees will contribute as appropriate to curriculum development and renewal in relation to Early Modern History.

We particularly encourage applications from those with an interest in innovative teaching, learning and assessment; those with experience of supporting a wide variety of students; and those belonging to groups underrepresented in UK higher education. We are open to appointing on a reduced fraction/job-share basis subject to our business needs.

About the College
