COURSE SUMMARY

Arguably, companies are the most popular form adopted by businesspeople to invest and diversify risk. It is now generally accepted that forming companies is the only option one may have to achieve financial objectives where substantial investment is required. Even in some jurisdictions it is mandatory for financial institutions to adopt the form of a company, private or public, before they can obtain a licence to offer their products to the public. The purpose of this course is to introduce students to some areas of law underpinning the formation, management, expansion and liquidation of companies as the most popular form of business organisations. Company law is divided in four large blocks or parts namely: company constitution, corporate governance, corporate finance and corporate solvent or insolvent liquidation. Depending on whether students take the course the academic year will depend upon the blocks that will be covered.

Students taking the Elements of Company Law course will either attend in the first part of the academic year or the second part. If students attend in second part they will be given an outline of the law relating to company formation and the importance of the company constitution.

COURSE AIMS

The aims of the course are to:

- Assist students in obtaining a thorough knowledge and understanding of the main principles underpinning company law.
- Enable students to demonstrate systematic knowledge of the operation and management of companies.
- Develop students' legal skills to resolve complex corporate problems and disputes.
- Encourage wider reading and independent legal research of current corporate law issues.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

On successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDING

- K1c Critically discuss the legal theories, principles, doctrines, values and rules which underpin the incorporation, regulation and corporate governance aspects of company law.

TEACHING AND LEARNING

Teaching and learning strategies for this course will include:

- 12 hours of full-cohort lectures
- 4 hours of group tutorials
- 2 x 30-minute one-to-one tutorials per student
- 1 x 2-hour revision session

Course information and supplementary materials are available on the College’s Virtual Learning Environment (VLE).

Students will attend Collections (formal meetings) in which they receive comprehensive and collated feedback about their performance over the term.

Students are required to attend and participate in all the formal and timetabled sessions for this course. Students are also expected to manage their directed learning and independent study in support of the course.

EMPLOYABILITY SKILLS

- This course develops effective written, oral and online communication skills
- The course addresses core needs for practicing lawyers, especially independent research, communication, and presentation skills
- Students will be taught skills and professional awareness to support professional development
- The course develops critical problem solving and the production of evidence-based advice

ASSESSMENT

FORMATIVE

Students will be formatively assessed during the course by means of set assignments. These will not count towards the final degree but will provide students with developmental feedback, for example helping students to become more sophisticated in their research skills and analysis of statutes and case law.

SUMMATIVE

Assessment will be in one form:

AE:	Assessment Activity	Weighting (%)	Online submission	Duration	Length
1	Examination	100%	N/A	2 hours	N/A

The examination will consist of a number of questions from which the student will have the choice of answering a specified number. The examination will be assessed in accordance with the assessment aims set out in the Programme Specification.

FEEDBACK

Students will receive formal feedback in a variety of ways: written (including via email correspondence); oral (within one-to-one tutorials or on an ad hoc basis) and indirectly through discussion during group tutorials. Student’s will also attend the formal meeting, Collections, in which they will receive constructive and developmental feedback on their performance.

Feedback on examinations is provided through generic internal examiners’ reports and are made available to the student on the VLE.
